

Provincial Nominee Program Guide

Practical roadmap for targeted provincial nomination

How PNP Works

- Provinces select candidates who match local labor market and demographic priorities.
- Some streams are linked to Express Entry, while others follow base nomination pathways.
- Selection trends can change quickly based on provincial policy updates and draw targets.

Choosing the Right Province

- Compare your NOC profile with in-demand occupations by province.
- Assess language thresholds, employer requirements, and proof of ties expectations.
- Balance nomination opportunity with settlement goals and job market fit.

Base vs Enhanced Streams

- Base streams can lead to PR without active Express Entry in many cases.
- Enhanced streams require Express Entry and can add 600 CRS points after nomination.
- Your strategy should align with timeline, profile strength, and federal stage readiness.

Application Quality Checklist

- Keep employment records, education credentials, and language documents consistent.
- Demonstrate genuine intention to settle in the target province.
- Submit complete evidence to reduce delays, procedural fairness requests, and refusals.

Sawa Immigration Support

- Province selection strategy based on real-time draw behavior.
- Structured preparation of documents and submission readiness checks.
- End-to-end support from nomination stage to federal PR processing.
